Environmental Health & Safety (EHS) Training

EH&S provides training for students, faculty and staff on general safety and special topics to help improve the working and learning environment of NMSU, and to facilitate compliance with regulations related to safety, health and environment protection. Except for Defensive Driving these classes are free. Checklists of required training by work area can be viewed at the following links: (Lab and research areas), (Non-lab areas) and Trades. Most classes are instructed at the Safety Training Facility in Academic Research Bldg. C, Room 110.

For the class schedule use this link or you may register for an offering here

Fire Department & Emergency Services Training

NMSU Fire Department provides training for students, faculty and staff on general fire safety and how to operate a fire extinguisher. NMSU FD also provides fire prevention and other public education services such as American Heart Association Basic Life Support (BLS) Class for Healthcare Providers and renewal certification. Those interested in learning lifesaving skills to help coworkers, family or friends can sign up for our American Heart Association First Aid, CPR and AED class or renew a previous certification. The NMSU Fire Department is located at the corner of Wells St. and Research Avenue south of the intramural fields.

Please sign up here for all classes which are taught in the Fire Department Training room.

Police Department Training

The primary functions of NMSU Police Department are law enforcement, criminal investigation and emergency response. Integral to these are the crime prevention and public education programs which help to reduce the likelihood of crimes. Special courses are available upon request. Call 646-4533 or visit police@nmsu.edu.
